SAMPLE TEST's profile

Your dominant trait

Meticulousness

This is the tendency to show self-discipline, act dutifully, to aspire achievement and success. It also deals with planning things rather than behaving spontaneously.

The Comments

Sociability-Dynamism

He is sensitive and open to others even though he remains careful and secretive. It is not easy to win his trust.

To see his personal and professional projects through, he tries to strike a balance between action and reflection, between the abstract and the concrete.

In society, he knows how to avoid uneasiness with a steady and a decisive approach. However, it would be in his interest to be more spontaneous and relaxed, as his reserved nature can sometimes be taken as distrust.

He avoids commotion and looks for time alone, which is necessary for his concentration.

Meticulousness

He is disciplined, rigorous and demanding of himself. He does not like doing things at the last minute because he does not like making mistakes. He is meticulous and likes detail, so much that he dislikes organising events hastily.

He is tidy and likes finishing what he has started, but his desire to do things well can be so overwhelming that it becomes perfectionism, which keeps him from moving on.

It would be to his advantage to widen his horizons by trusting his intuition more and by learning to appreciate creative and spontaneous people.

Emotional balance

With his rather reserved nature, he can seem detached from other people's judgements. Generally, he knows how to manage little problems and everyday stress, even though he sometimes loses his temper over trivial things.

Under a facade of quiet nonchalance, he manages quite well to conceal his fears and sensitivity.

Consciousness of others

He is concerned about the future of the world but not to the point of turning his life upside down. Despite his openness to others, he always stays focused on his projects and personal goals. He will never let anybody push him because he knows and respects his limits.

He is not rigid in his attitude; he just knows what he wants.

His family and his friends appreciate his frankness: he knows exactly what to say to others and the impression he gives is clear and realistic.

Openness / Imagination

He is rather conservative and at ease in familiar surroundings.

However, he is open to new experiences, although he does not necessarily look for them. He likes stability and well-established rules enable him to better know and respect his limits. He is known for his reliability because he finishes everything he starts and makes decisions quickly and without argument.
